LOUISVILLE, KY

Gnaedinger City 2019

The smallest but official Park in Louisville - and the only one in the entire world

at the

KENTUCKY DERBY

Presented by WOODFORD RESERVE®

by Niklaus Gnaedinger

Long planned but short announced: a Gnaedinger Reunion in Louisville

Of course, it is not the only one, but this time with Gnaedingers from Europe, from Switzerland, not far away from Wahlwies, the origin of the Gnaedingers in Louisville

Since the Gnaedinger Park exist, this have to tell us the locals from Louisville. And when and how the first Gnaedinger arrived in Louisville too.

Clear is that they must have loved this place so much that many of the descendants still live in Louisville or at least in Kentucky.

Nick Gnaedinger staying with his family for this reunion and the Derby (of course) showed in a presentation the origin of Gnaedinger generally and specifically about the Louisville line.

Comment:

The history that lead to this reunion started more than 25 years ago. David Gnaedinger and his family were interested in their origin and in genealogy.

As far as I know did he wrote to an organisation in Germany finding about more of the Gnaedinger's. There, they knew that the name has his homebase in the south of Germany. And they sent the letter in this area. There someone knew that I dealt with this topic and sent the letter to me.

Very pleased I contacted David and we started this long lasting relationship and friendship.

In the meantime i visited Louisville in 1992 and David two times Germany and Switzerland with his family.

LOUISVILLE

Wikipedia: Gnadinger Park is the smallest public park in Louisville, Kentucky. It is located in the Germantown neighborhood at the intersection of Reutlinger and Ellison Avenues. The property was donated to the City of Louisville and dedicated as a park in 1977. It is registered as being just 0.03 acre (1,300 square feet)^[1] in size. The property once belonged to Frank and Mary Gnadinger who had built a house on the property at 1027 Ellison Avenue in 1923.

ARMS OF GNÄDINGER

GNÄDINGER
1403

The black ram in golden yellow background represents the strength and the leadership talent of the first Gnädinger. The gray helmet with yellow-gold and black plume was the symbol of the aristocratic war necks of Habsburg anno 1403.

With the elevation in the knighthood the golden crown was awarded with the three prongs; the black G was the award of the Council of Constance to the God-fearing families.

In the Zurich War of 1447 it was seen for the first time the complete coat of arms and banners in the Confederation.

It is said that the name and arms come originally from Bachsee, Tirol, Austria
